

22.1.11
H-173
5095
TWENTY YEARS AFTER.

BY

ALEXANDRE DUMAS,

AUTHOR OF "MONTE CRISTO."

TRANSLATED BY

WILLIAM ROBSON,

TRANSLATOR OF "THE THREE MUSKETEERS," ETC. ETC.

A NEW EDITION.

LONDON:

ROUTLEDGE, WARNE, AND ROUTLEDGE,

FARRINGTON STREET.

NEW YORK: 56, WALKER STREET.

1860.

Ä

LONDON:
SAVILL AND EDWARDS, PRINTERS, CHANDOS STREET,
COVENT GARDEN.

2 41834-50

CONTENTS.

1.—The Ghost of Richelieu	Page 1
2.—A Night Round	7
3.—Two Ancient Enemies	13
4.—Anne of Austria at Forty-six	23
5.—Gascon and Italian	30
6.—D'Artagnan at Forty	34
7.—D'Artagnan is embarrassed; but one of our old acquaintances comes to his aid	38
8.—Of the different influences that a Demi-pistole can have over a Verger and over a Chorister-boy	44
9.—How d'Artagnan, whilst searching for Aramis at a distance, found that he was en croupe behind Planchet	48
10.—The Abbé d'Herblay	54
11.—Cautious Politics	59
12.—M. Porthos du Vallon de Bracieux de Pierrefonds	66
13.—How d'Artagnan perceived, on finding Porthos, that Fortune does not always bring Happiness	69
In which it is demonstrated, that if Porthos was dissatisfied with his position, Mousqueton was well satisfied with his	75
Angels' Heads	80
Château of Bragelonne	85
Diplomacy of Athos	91
M. de Beaufort	97
How M. le Duc de Beaufort recreated himself in the Donjon of Vincennes	102
20.—Grimaud enters upon his Functions	109
21.—The Contents of the Pâtés of the Successor of Père Marteau	116
22.—One of Marie Michon's Adventures	123

23.—The Abbé Scarron	Page 132
24.—Saint-Denis	124
25.—One of the forty means or escape of Monsieur de Beaufort ..	148
26.—D'Artagnan arrives opportunely	155
27.—The High Road	161
28.—A Meeting	166
29.—Four old Friends prepare to meet again	171
30.—La Place Royale	177
31.—The Ferry of the Oise	181
32.—A Skirmish	186
33.—The Monk	191
34.—The Absolution	198
35.—Grimaud speaks	202
36.—The Eve of the Battle	206
37.—A Dinner of Former Times	213
38.—The Letter of Charles I.	218
39.—Cromwell's Letter	222
40.—Mazarin and Madame Henriette	227
41.—How the Unfortunate sometimes mistake Chance for Providence	231
42.—The Uncle and the Nephew	236
43.—Paternity	239
44.—Another Queen who asks assistance	245
45.—In which it is proved that the first impulse is always the best ..	252
46.—The Te Deum for the Victory of Lens	257
47.—The Mendicant of Saint-Eustache	269
48.—The Tower of Saint-Jacques-la-Boucherie	276
49.—The Riot	280
50.—The Riot becomes a Revolt	285
51.—Misfortune assists the Memory	293
52.—The Interview	297
53.—The Flight	301
54.—The Carriage of M. le Coadjuteur	309
55.—How d'Artagnan and Porthos gained, the one two hundred and nineteen, and the other two hundred and fifteen louis, by selling Straw	317
56.—News of Aramis	323

57.—The Musketeers in England	Page 330
58.—The Avenger	335
59.—Oliver Cromwell	341
60.—The Gentlemen	344
61.—Jesus Seigneur	348
62.—In which it is proved that in the most difficult positions great hearts never lose their courage, nor good stomachs their appetites	353
63.—A salute to fallen Majesty	358
64.—D'Artagnan finds a Project	364
65.—The Lansquenet Party	371
66.—London	375
67.—The Trial	380
68.—Whitehall	386
69.—The Workmen	392
70.—Remember	397
71.—The Masked Man	401
72.—Cromwell's House	407
73.—Conversation	413
74.—The Felucca "the Lightning"	419
75.—Port Wine	426
76.—Port Wine (continuation)	433
77.—Fatality	436
78.—In which, after having escaped being roasted, Mousqueton is near being eaten	441
79.—Return	447
80.—The Ambassadors	452
81.—The Three Lieutenants of the Generalissimo	457
82.—The Fight of Charenton	466
83.—The Route to Picardy	473
84.—The Gratitude of Anne of Austria	478
85.—The Royalty of M. de Mazarin	481
86.—Precaution	484
87.—Wit and Strength	488
88.—Wit and Strength (continuation)	490
89.—Wit and Strength (continuation)	494