

WITH HICKS PASHA
IN THE SOUDAN

BEING AN

ACCOUNT OF THE SENAAR CAMPAIGN IN 1883

BY

COLONEL THE HON. J. COLBORNE

FORMERLY OF THE 60TH (KING'S ROYAL RIFLES) AND LATTERLY IN THE
SERVICE OF HIS HIGHNESS THE KHEDIVÉ

WITH A FRONTISPIECE

LONDON
SMITH, ELDER, & CO., 15 WATERLOO PLACE
1884

[All rights reserved]

CAPT. MASSEY. MAJOR FARQUHAR. MAJOR WARNER. SERGT. BRADY. R.H.A. CAPT. EVANS. CAPT. FORESTIER
(Hicks' Orderly.) (Interpreter.) WALKER.

COL. HON. J. COLBORNE. MAJOR MARTIN. HICKS PASHA. DE COËTLOGON PASHA.

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

---

IF any apology were needed for the production of this little book, one might be found in the fact that the interest of mankind is just now centred in that mysterious Soudan country which is herein treated of. The very title of the work will probably secure for it an attentive perusal from many thousands of sympathetic English men and women who were so indescribably shocked last year to hear of the terrible ending of Hicks Pasha's expedition. The author, like many another officer on active service, found moments now and then in which, amidst the turmoil of a camp, he could give the public at home an account of the impressions made upon him during the passing hour. In the following pages will be found sundry reprints of interesting communications made to various journals, under such circumstances, which in spite of the inconvenience of occasional repetition, the editor