Latest Volumes.—September 1908.

The Shuttle. By FRANCES
HODGSON BURNETT. 2 vols. -
4035/36.

The question of the moral advantages of Anglo-American marriages, especially where the American wife is a millionairess, and the English husband a penniless though titled person, forms the main theme of this newest romance by the celebrated authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

Emotional Moments. By
SARAH GRAND. 1 vol. - 4037.

These stories from the pen of one of England's most powerful lady writers are instinct with a deep, and withal a kindly, insight into the workings of the main-spring which chiefly controls our erring human nature.

White Rose of Weary Leaf.
By VIOLET HUNT. 2 vols. -
4038/39.

Her sex has seldom met with so true and clever an expounder as Miss Violet Hunt, who, though the hard facts of life and sexual problems are never slurred or passed over, has in this excellent story created a brave and charming heroine who appeals irresistibly.

The Human Boy Again.
By EDEN PHILLPOTTS. 1 vol. - 4040.

A second series of humorous sketches of schoolboy life, in which the youthful heroes are made to expose the inherent devilry of their nature in their own characteristic way. The volume is, of course, a sequel to the author's "Human Boy."

The Weavers. By GILBERT
PARKER. 2 vols. - 4041/42.

This is an Egyptian drama of absorbing interest, which will go far to enhance the author's already brilliant reputation. In following the story we breathe the very air of the desert and plumb the deeps of Eastern intrigue.

The Millionaire Girl, and Other Stories. By "RITA."
1 vol. - 4043.

This volume contains a dozen sketches of England and the Riviera, many of them written in the minor key of pathos, by an authoress well known as a pitiless satirist of the English haut monde.

The Heart of a Child.
By FRANK DANBY. 2 vols. -
4044/45.

The authoress has in this keen study of humanity depicted the life history of a London slum girl who rises to the position of a peeress of the realm. Sally Snapes is one of the most striking and lovable female figures in modern fiction.

The Grey Knight. By MRS.
HENRY DE LA PASTURE. 1 vol. - 4046.

The writer of this charming Welsh idyll has had the unusual courage to allot some hundred years to the combined ages of the knight and his lady. Both characters are well deserving of study.

During Her Majesty's
Pleasure. By M. E. BRAD-
DON. 1 vol. - 4047.

Miss Braddon's tales are always rich in unexpected or startling incident, and the interest roused by the first chapter of this work is fully maintained to the end.

New Worlds for Old. By
H. G. WELLS. 1 vol. - 4048.

It may come as a surprise to many readers that Mr. Wells is an ardent Socialist of the modern type. In this, his latest work he expounds the principles of Socialism as he understands them and pictures the means by which the millenium desired by all men may eventually be reached.
