IN collecting the materials for the following pages, the author has had recourse to Cook's Voyages, Stewart's Journal, Tour around Hawaii, Memoirs of Keopuolani, Stewart's Visit to the South Seas, and the Missionary Herald. Where the exact words of these authors are used to any considerable length, credit has generally been given, by double commas. Great pains have been taken to spell and divide the proper names according to the most recent rules given by the missionaries. The hints for pronouncing the language of the natives were prepared by one of the Secretaries of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and are worthy the attention of all who would read the Missionary Herald with ease and correctness.

SANDWICH ISLANDS MISSION.

CHAPTER I.

Let idols totter to the ground,
And their own worshippers confound ;
Let Hawaii shout and Maui sing,
And earth confess her sovereign king.

SISTER Jane, do come and help me find Polynesia ; for I have looked all over the map of the world, and cannot find it, said little Robert, who was just turned of six.

Ma' will soon come to hear us recite, replied Jane, and I have now twelve answers to find.

Robert cast a most imploring look at his sister, and said, oh Jane, do tell me where that single place, Polynesia, is.

It is not a single place, my dear, said Mrs. Barton, who that moment entered the room, but
