JERUSALEM

‘There are three acts in a man’s life which no one ought either to advise another to do or not to do. The first is to contract matrimony, the second is to go to the wars, the third is to visit the Holy Sepulchre. I say that these three acts are good in themselves, but they may easily turn out ill ; and when this is so, he who gave the advice comes to be blamed as if he were the cause of its turning out ill.’
