

A Cosmopolitan Picture.

"Janice Meredith." Marion Davies Edition.

COLONEL JACK BRERETON SWEARS ETERNAL DEVOTION TO JANICE.

H 49
40

JANICE MEREDITH

A STORY OF THE
AMERICAN REVOLUTION

BY

PAUL LEICESTER FORD

AUTHOR OF
THE HONORABLE PETER STIRLING, ETC.

ILLUSTRATED WITH SCENES
FROM THE PHOTOPLAY
A COSMOPOLITAN PICTURE
STARRING MARION DAVIES

GROSSET & DUNLAP
PUBLISHERS NEW YORK

Copyright, 1899
BY PAUL LEICESTER FORD

All rights reserved

29-2688

Printed in the U. S. A.

To
GEORGE W. VANDERBILT

My dear George,

Into the warp and woof of every book an author weaves much that even the subtlest readers cannot suspect, far less discern. To them it is but a cross and pile of threads interlaced to form a pattern which may please or displease their taste. But to the writer every filament has its own association: How each bit of silk or wool, flax or tow, was laboriously gathered, or was blown to him; when each was spun by the wheel of his fancy into yarns; the colour and tint his imagination gave to each skein; and where each was finally woven into the fabric by the shuttle of his pen. No thread ever quite detaches itself from its growth and spinning, dyeing and weaving, and each draws him back to hours and places seemingly unrelated to the work.

And so, as I have read the proofs of this book I have found more than once that the pages have faded out of sight and in their stead I have seen Mount Pisgah and the French Broad River, or the ramp and terrace of Biltmore House, just as I saw them when writing the words which served to recall them to me. With the visions, too, has come a recurrence to our long talks, our work among the books, our games of chess, our cups of tea, our walks, our rides, and our drives. It is therefore a pleasure to me that the book so naturally gravitates to you, and that I may make it a remembrance of those past weeks of companionship, and an earnest of the present affection of

PAUL LEICESTER FORD

Contents

CHAPTER	PAGE
I A HEROINE OF MANY POSSIBILITIES	1
II THE PRINCE FROM OVER THE SEAS	7
III MISS MEREDITH DISCOVERS A VILLAIN	14
IV AN APPLE OF DISCORD	20
V THE VALUE OF HAIR	28
VI MEN ARE DECEIVERS EVER	33
VII SPIDER AND FLY	40
VIII SEVERAL RUNNING QUESTIONS	46
IX PARADISE AND ELSEWHERE	52
X A COLONIAL CHRISTMAS	57
XI "TIS AN ILL WIND THAT BLOWS NOBODY GOOD"	64
XII A BABE IN THE WOOD	71
XIII THE WORLD IN MINIATURE	79
XIV A QUESTION CONCERNING THALIA	85
XV QUESTIONS OF DELICACY	92
XVI A VARIETY OF CONTRACTS	98
XVII IN THE NAME OF LIBERTY	105
XVIII FIGUREHEADS AND LEADERS	113
XIX SPIES AND COUNTER-SPIES	120
XX THE LOGIC OF HONORED PARENTS AND DUTIFUL CHILDREN	127
XXI A SUDDEN SCARCITY OF BEAUX	134
XXII THE OLIVE BRANCH	139
XXIII HEADQUARTERS IN 1776	146
XXIV THE VALUE OF A FRIEND	154
XXV FREEDOM IN RETROGRADE	161