

Ä

THE

ROMANS UNDER THE EMPIRE.

VOL. VI.

4321

Ä

Ä

LONDON
PRINTED BY SPOTTISWOODE AND CO.
NEW-STREET SQUARE

Ä

A

HISTORY

OF THE

ROMANS UNDER THE EMPIRE.

H 43
82

BY

CHARLES MERIVALE, B.D.

RECTOR OF LAWFORD:

CHAPLAIN TO THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

41125

NEW EDITION.

IN EIGHT VOLUMES.

VOL. VI.

4327

LONDON:

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.

1865.

E 49
TL

A

Ä

HO-773

Ä

CONTENTS

OF

THE SIXTH VOLUME.

CHAPTER XLVII.

PAGE

The family of Herod the Great at Rome—Berenice, and her children Herodias and Agrippa—Herodias repudiates her husband Philippus, marries Herod Antipas, and receives a principality in Palestine—Agrippa courts the young Caius, and imbues him with the ideas of Oriental sovereignty—Falls under the displeasure of Tiberius and is arrested—On the death of Tiberius he is released, and taken into favour by Caius—First commencement of the new principate—Liberality of Caius—His subservience to the senate—Attempts to restore the Comitia—Becomes consul, July, 790—His industry in administration—Magnificence of his shows—He falls into excessive dissipation—His dangerous illness—Despair of the citizens and provincials—On his recovery his head turned by flattery—Puts to death the young Tiberius, Macro and Ennia, and Silanus—His extravagances, necessities, and cruelty—Believes himself a god, and requires his subjects to worship him—Indifference of the Romans and Greeks—Resistance of the Jews—Disturbances at Alexandria—Agrippa goes to Palestine: intrigues against Antipas and Herodias: obtains their banishment, and succeeds to their dominions—Caius orders his statue to be set up in the Jewish synagogues, and in the temple at Jerusalem—Mission of Philo the Jew, and interview with the emperor (A.D. 37—40, A.U. 790—793)

1