THE TWO NEW PSEUDONYM VOLUMES.

53. AS A TREE FALLS. By
L. PARRY TRUSCOTT, Author of
"The Poet and Penelope."

"The 'Pseudonym Library' has re-started with a little work, distinct in character and talent. . . . The skill is remarkable."—Times.

"'As a Tree Falls' brings back all the old atmosphere of the 'Pseudonym Library.' The tale, which relates part of the history of Isaac Puttick, baker's assistant, and Rhoda, the 'new girl,' is worthy of traditions which have always been wonderfully maintained. It is sound, sincere work."—Daily Mail.

54. A NE'ER DO WEEL. By VALENTINE CARYL.

"This number of the dainty 'Pseudonym Library' is worthy of the series. It is a happy fancy, that of the strange boy, half gipsy, half Italian, who has been brought up by a deaf-and-dumb peasant mother, far from the haunts of men. . . . There is depth in the main theme, as well as delicacy and incisiveness in the presentment of the various characters."—Athenæum.
