

COLLECTION
OF
BRITISH AUTHORS.

VOL. 700.

---

FREDERICK THE GREAT BY THOMAS CARLYLE

VOL. VIII.

TAUCHNITZ EDITION.

By the same Author,

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION . . . . . 3 vols.
OLIVER CROMWELL'S LETTERS AND SPEECHES 4 vols.

---

Ä

V 382
45

HISTORY

OF

FRIEDRICH II. OF PRUSSIA

CALLED

FREDERICK THE GREAT.

BY

THOMAS CARLYLE.

COPYRIGHT EDITION

VOL. VIII.

LEIPZIG

BERNHARD TAUCHNITZ

1864.

The Right of Translation is reserved.

Ä

CONTENTS

O F V O L U M E VIII.

---

BOOK XV.

SECOND SILESIAN WAR, IMPORTANT EPISODE IN THE GENERAL EUROPEAN ONE. 1744-1745.

| CHAPTER                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | PAGE |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| I. PRELIMINARY: HOW THE MOMENT ARRIVED . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 3    |
| Prince Karl gets across the Rhine (20th June—2d July 1744), p. 6. Friedrich decides to intervene, 12.                                                                                                                                                  |      |
| II. FRIEDRICH MARCHES UPON PRAG, CAPTURES PRAG . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                               | 17   |
| III. FRIEDRICH, DILIGENT IN HIS BOHEMIAN CONQUESTS,UNEXPECTEDLY COMES UPON PRINCE KARL,WITH NO FRENCH ATTENDING HIM . . . . .                                                                                                                  | 31   |
| Friedrich, leaving small Garrison in Prag, rushes swiftly up the Moldau Valley, upon the Tabor-Budweis Country; to please his French Friends, p. 34.                                                                                                   |      |
| The French are little grateful for the Pleasure done them at such ruinous Expense, 39.                                                                                                                                                                 |      |
| IV. FRIEDRICH REDUCED TO STRAITS; CANNOT MAINTAIN HIS MOLDAU CONQUESTS AGAINST PRINCE KARL . . . . .                                                                                                                                                   | 46   |
| Friedrich tries to have Battle from Prince Karl, in the Moldau Countries; cannot, owing to the Skill of Prince Karl or of old Feldmarschall Traun; — has to retire behind the Sazawa, and ultimately behind the Elbe, with much Labour in Vain, p. 48. |      |
| Friedrich's Retreat; especially Einsiedel's from Prag, 59.                                                                                                                                                                                             |      |

| CHAPTER                                                                                                                                                                                  | PAGE |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| V. FRIEDRICH UNDER DIFFICULTIES, PREPARES FOR A NEW CAMPAIGN . . . . .                                                                                                                   | 66   |
| Old Dessauer repels the Silesian Invasion (Winter 1744-5), p. 71.                                                                                                                        |      |
| The French fully intend to behave better next Season to Friedrich and their German Allies; — but are prevented by various Accidents (November 1744—April 1745; April — August 1745), 76. |      |
| Strange Accident to Maréchal de Belleisle in the Harz Mountains (20th December 1744), 79.                                                                                                |      |
| The Kaiser Karl VII. gets secured from Oppressions, in a tragic Way. Friedrich proposes Peace, but to no purpose, 85.                                                                    |      |
| VI. VALORI GOES ON AN ELECTIONEERING MISSION TO DRESDEN . . . . .                                                                                                                        | 93   |
| 1 <sup>o</sup> . Friedrich's Position towards Saxony, p. 94.                                                                                                                             |      |
| 2 <sup>o</sup> . There is a "Union of Warsaw" (8th January 1745); and still more specially a "Treaty of Warsaw" (8th January — 18th May 1745), 95.                                       |      |
| 3 <sup>o</sup> . Valori's Account of his Mission (in compressed form) 98.                                                                                                                |      |
| Middle-Rhine Army in a staggering State; the Bavarian Intricacy settles itself, the wrong Way, 101.                                                                                      |      |
| VII. FRIEDRICH IN SILESIA; UNUSUALLY BUSY . . . . .                                                                                                                                      | 107  |
| King Friedrich to Podewils in Berlin (under various dates, March — April 1745), p. 108.                                                                                                  |      |
| Friedrich to Podewils (as before, April—May 1745), 116.                                                                                                                                  |      |
| VIII. THE MARTIAL BOY AND HIS ENGLISH versus THE LAWS OF NATURE . . . . .                                                                                                         | 121  |
| Battle of Fontenoy (11th May 1745), p. 122.                                                                                                                                              |      |
| IX. THE AUSTRIAN-SAXON ARMY INVADES SILESIA, ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS . . . . .                                                                                                              | 136  |
| X. BATTLE OF HOHENFRIEDBERG . . . . .                                                                                                                                                    | 156  |
| XI. CAMP OF CHLUM: FRIEDRICH CANNOT ACHIEVE PEACE                                                                                                                                        | 165  |
| Camp of Dieskau: Britannic Majesty makes Peace, for himself, with Friedrich; but cannot for Austria or Saxony, p. 175.                                                                   |      |