

HISTORY
OF
THE UNITED STATES,

FROM

THE DISCOVERY OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT TO
THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

BY GEORGE BANCROFT,

FORMERLY AMBASSADOR AT THE COURT OF ST. JAMES'S.

IN SEVEN VOLUMES.

VOL. VII.

A New Edition.

LONDON:
ROUTLEDGE, WARNE, & ROUTLEDGE,
FARRINGTON STREET.

1861.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER XLI.

THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS IN MIDSUMMER, 1775.

June 17—July, 1775.

Censure on Howe's attack on Bunker Hill. Sufferings of the British. Great loss of officers. Death of Abercrombie. Election of American major-generals. Artemas Ward. Charles Lee. Opinion of him in England. His character; his demand of indemnity. New York proposes Schuyler. Montgomery's opinion. Schuyler's character. Choice of Israel Putnam. His previous career; his character. Horatio Gates Adjutant-General. His rank; his character. Incompetency of the general officers. Thomas Jefferson enters Congress. Election of brigadiers. Seth Pomeroy chosen. His character. He declines. Richard Montgomery chosen. His character. Choice of David Wooster. Of William Heath. Of Joseph Spencer. Of John Thomas. Of John Sullivan. Of Nathaniel Greene. Washington's farewell to Congress. His departure from Philadelphia. His reception at New York. Reception of Governor Tryon. Address of New York Congress to Washington. His answer. New York plan of accommodation. Congress expects but one campaign. Its financial system. Increase of the army. Congress authorizes the invasion of Canada. Causes of taking up arms. Measures advised by John Adams. Franklin's message to Strahan. Second petition of Congress to the king. Union announced. Congress addresses the people of Great Britain. Address to London. Appointment of Richard Penn as agent for Congress. The alternative proposed.—Pages 3—13.

CHAPTER XLII.

THE ARMY ROUND BOSTON. July, 1775.

Washington, Mifflin, Reed, Lee, Gates, at Cambridge. Popularity of Washington. Trumbull's Message. State of the army. Washington visits the American posts. Their condition. Sufferings of the inhabitants of Boston. Number of the British army. The American lines. Stockbridge Indians. Numbers of the American army. Their appearance. The camp. Its deficiencies. Washington introduces reforms. Lee tries to negotiate. Burgoyne's letter to Lee. Lee's clandestine letter to Burgoyne. Various skirmishes and expeditions. Declaration for taking up arms read to the colony. Town meetings in Massachusetts. Election of House of Representatives. Boston town meeting held at Concord. Attack on Boston lighthouse. Organization of government in Massachusetts. Alarm of General Gage. He wishes to transfer the army to New York. Skirmish at the lighthouse. Washington misjudges the New England people. Their benevolence and zeal. Their exertions.—Page 13—20.

CHAPTER XLIII.

CONGRESS STILL HOPES TO AVERT WAR.

July 29—August, 1775.

Inefficiency of the continental Congress as an executive body. Washington's reports. His wants. Reports from Schuyler. The want of discipline. Measures adopted by Congress. Congress gives authority to employ troops, and recommendations to provide them. Franklin proposes a confederacy. Its conditions; its component members; its perpetuity. Two great principles of his plan. The proposition reserved. Georgia joins the Union. Lord North's proposal referred to a committee. Jamaica remembered. America and Ireland. Americans complain to the Irish of Howe. British attempts to gain the aid of the savages. Apathy of Congress. Indignation of John Adams. His letters intercepted. Jefferson's paper in reply to Lord North's proposal. Reasons for rejecting his proposal. Proposal for a truce. Post-office established. Congressional system of finances. How it was proposed to redeem the paper money. Contrast of the finances of Britain. Congress refuses to open the American ports. Congress adjourns.—Page 20—26.

CHAPTER XLIV.

AMERICA AWAITS THE KING'S DECISION.

August—September, 1775.

Duties of Washington. His position. His want of money, powder, arms. Divisions of the army. Washington's measures to obtain a little powder. Spirit of the country. The riflemen. Character of Morgan. Zeal of his company. Cresap and his company. Pennsylvania riflemen. Alacrity of the new recruits. Influence of the riflemen on European tactics. Linzee beaten off from Cape Ann. Artifices of Gage. His ill-treatment of American prisoners. Washington remonstrates. Foolish insolence of Gage. Washington and the people as the source of power. Retaliation threatened. Stanhope breaks his parole. State of the British troops in Boston. Timorousness of Gage. Boston more closely invested. Washington rejects the plan of an expedition against Nova Scotia. He directs an invasion of Canada from Ticonderoga, and by way of the Kennebec. His policy with regard to coast defence; his difficulties and wants; his fortitude.—Page 26—33.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER XLV.

CONDITION OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.

July—October, 1775.

Moderation the wise policy for the central provinces. System of William Franklin in New Jersey. Provincial Congress of New Jersey. Provides for defence. Lord Stirling. Pennsylvania. Willing and its first convention. Reed and its second convention. Mistakes of policy. The social influence of Philadelphia. Influence of the proprietary governor. Dickinson misuses his power. Insincerity of the assembly. It appoints a committee of safety. Firmness of Delaware. Mackean. Unanimity of Maryland. Its conservative measures. It restores equality to the Catholic. Charles Carroll. Lukewarmness of Dulany. Character of Samuel Chase. Spirit of the colony. The proprietary. Prudence of Eden, the lieutenant-governor. Convention at Annapolis. Its spirit and measures. It places Catholic and Protestant on an equality. Rashness of Dunmore in Virginia. Moderation of the assembly. Arrogance of Dunmore. Unanimity of the assembly. Regal authority abdicated. Virginia convention at Richmond. Its measures. Military rank of Patrick Henry. Richard Bland. His retirement. George Mason elected to Congress. He declines. Election of Francis Lee. Choice of a committee of safety. Edmund Pendleton. Virginia issues more paper money. Taxation suspended. Declaration of the convention. Spirit of Jefferson.—Page 33—41.

CHAPTER XLVI.

GEORGIA AND THE CAROLINAS.

July—October, 1775.

Governor of Georgia for conciliation. Provincial Congress. Its measures. Movements of the people. State of South Carolina. Advice of its governor. News of Bunker Hill battle reaches Charleston. A session of the South Carolina legislature. The patriots. The council. The condition of the interior. Herdsmen, Germans, and others despised by the planters. Emissaries visit them. Hostilities and a truce. Andrew Pickens. Many of the inhabitants royalists. Danger from the savages. Stuart, the Indian agent. Gage and the savages. His order. Stuart obeys the order. What the deputy agent thought of employing the Cherokees. Measures for defence of Charleston. Proposal to arrest the governor defeated by Rawlins Lowndes. Moultrie seizes Fort Johnson. Pinckney's courage. Post taken at