OLD WORLDS FOR NEW

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS

Daily News and Leader :

"It is an important controversial work, representative of many new and far from negligible tendencies in labour and other advanced circles."

Athenæum :

"The author deals with a variety of topics, among which may be mentioned the Mediæval Guild System, large organizations, the division of labour, machinery and industry, the tyranny of the middleman, the problem of his elimination, and the decentralization of industry."

The Scotsman :

"While the papers move over eminently controversial ground, they are freshly reasoned and suggestive."

Sheffield Independent :

"There are ideas in this book worth more than a king's ransom."

Church Times :

"The Guild Socialist Movement has its many exponents, but Mr. Penty contrives at once to be exponent and critic. . . . There are signs in plenty that Guild Socialism is the next popular social doctrine with which we have to reckon."

Mr. G. K. Chesterton in the "New Witness" :

"We wish some of the honest elements roughly covered by the National Party would read such a book as Mr. A. J. Penty's 'Old Worlds for New'; and they might not talk so excitedly or at least so exclusively about Maximum Production. . . . Even the few short words of Mr. Penty's title contains a wide challenge to the progress of the modern world; they are not only a parody on Mr. Wells but a very valid comment on him."

The Herald :

"The book should be read by all who are anxious about altering the present conditions. It has much of permanent value, and it is provoking and stimulating. It is a terrible bore to read a book with which you agree in every detail. You usually go to sleep. No one will do this, however, that reads 'Old Worlds for New.'"

Manchester Guardian :

"Mr. Penty has considerable claims to be regarded as the pioneer of Guild Socialism."
