ANALYTICAL TABLE OF CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Author's reasons for abandoning in this work the usual method of division by centuries	1
This history is divided into five parts or periods, ending respectively at the establishment of the Church by Constantine; at the death of Charlemagne; at the death of Gregory VII.; at the secession of the Popes to Avignon; at the beginning of the Reformation	2
The study of ecclesiastical history teaches religious moderation	3

PART I.

CHAPTER I.—The Propagation of Christianity. *

A.D.
60	The Church of Jerusalem. James the Just its first President or Bishop	5
65	Secession of the Christian Church to Pella	6
	No tabularies or public acts preserved by the primitive Christians	6
134	Foundation of Ælia Capitolina by Adrian	6
40	Church of Antioch, founded by St. Paul and Barnabas	7
	There the Converts first assumed the name of Christian	7
107	Ignatius, the second Bishop, suffered martyrdom in the persecution of Trajan	7
	The pretended correspondence between Jesus Christ and Abgarus, Prince of Edessa in Mesopotamia, proves the early introduction of the faith into that country	8
	The Church of Ephesus, founded by St. Paul, and governed by St. John	8
166	The Church of Smyrna governed by Polycarp, till his martyrdom under Marcus Antoninus	8
	The Churches of Sardis and Hierapolis. Melito and Papias. Conversion of Bithynia	9
107	The testimony of Pliny the Younger, contained in his Epistle to Trajan	10
	The difficulty of establishing the Church at Athens may be ascribed to the speculative character of the people	11
95	Greater facility in the conversion of the Corinthians. The dissensions of the converts were censured by St. Clement, Bishop of Rome	12
165	The seven Catholic Epistles of the Bishop Dionysius	12
64	The persecution at Rome is related by Tacitus, with little humanity. St. Peter and St. Paul are believed to have suffered on that occasion. Testimony to the numerical importance of the Converts	13
196	Victor, Bishop of Rome, addressed an order to the Asiatic Bishops respecting the celebration of Easter, which they refused to obey. A Schism was the consequence	14
177	A persecution in Gaul by Marcus Antoninus	14
	Irenæus was subsequently Bishop of Lyons	15
	Some reasons why the Church of Alexandria was probably numerous at an early period	15
	St. Mark, the first Bishop	15
