PREFACE.

N the title to this volume of Sermons, I have endeavoured to express the humbleness of their pretensions. They are ordinary parochial exhortations, mainly delivered on Sundays after Trinity, during that great division of the Church's year in which she endeavours to impress on us the reiterated lessons of daily duty—that duty towards God, and duty towards our neighbour, on which hang all the Law and the Prophets.

The work of preaching, which so many despise, is full of anxious responsibility. The anxiety of any sincere and honest man is only to teach the truth so far as God has enabled him to see it. I can imagine no calling more vulgar or
