The Dream and the Business. By JOHN OLIVER HOBBS.
2 vols. - 3913/14.

Mrs. Craigie, whose recent death will be felt by all lovers of good literature, has herewith given us a romance of modern times in which politics and types of living politicians are not wanting.

Set in Authority. By MRS. EVERARD COTES. 1 vol. - 3915.

This is an Indian story which will appeal to all politicians who have the problem of Indian government at heart. Mrs. Cotes' knowledge of human nature under trying circumstances is as apparent as ever.

The Guarded Flame. By W. B. MAXWELL. 2 vols. - 3916/17.

The flame that is here guarded is the life and intellect of a great and world-renowned philosopher, round whose family life the author weaves a grim and grandly described tragedy. The working of an unusually great brain is set forth in trenchant detail.

Outdoor Pastimes of an American Hunter. By THEODORE ROOSEVELT. (With Portrait.) 1 vol. - 3918.

The President of the United States is the author of several well-known works. This, the first by his pen to appear in the Tauchnitz Edition, deals exclusively with big-game hunting in North America.

The Call of the Blood. By ROBERT HICHENS. 2 vols. - 3919/20.

A Sicilian tragedy, in which an Englishwoman marries a man with the blood of the island in his veins and an unconquerable propensity to revert to the characteristics of its inhabitants.

Memoirs of my Dead Life. By GEORGE MOORE. 1 v. - 3921.

A series of sketches, in some of which the love-affairs of the author's early life are realistically set before the reader.

Prisoners. By MARY CHOLMONDELEY. 2 vols. - 3922/23.

Miss Cholmondeley's latest work is a splendid study of the action of remorse. The chivalrous victim immured in an Italian prison must have suffered indeed from an appreciation of the fickleness and weakness of woman.

Puck of Pook's Hill. By RUDYARD KIPLING. 1 v. - 3924

This new work consists of a series of incidents and chapters from the older history of Britain, told to two young children by the long-dead actors themselves, with the magic help of the "Oldest Old Thing in England."

Paul. By E. F. BENSON. 2 vols. - 3925/26.

A powerful psychological romance, in which love, duty and conscience play important parts, and the obscure workings of the feminine mind are laid bare with the author's accustomed skill.

In the Days of the Comet. By H. G. WELLS. 1 vol. - 3927.

This work is a new study of the future and of "things as they should be," in the style of Jules Verne, by which most of Mr. Wells's popular books are characterised.

Sophy of Kravonia. By ANTHONY HOPE. 2 v. - 3928/29.

Though the State of Kravonia be not found on any map, the lovers of Mr. Hope's romances will find very real the characters in this new tale of love, intrigue, and high politics.
