1894.

“Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing,
Only a signal shewn, and a distant voice in the darkness;
So, on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another,
Only a look and a voice, then darkness again and a silence.”

TO MY DEAR FRIENDS,
AGNES AND JOHN KENDALL,
THIS LITTLE BOOK,
WRITTEN MOSTLY IN THEIR HOME,
IS LOVINGLY DEDICATED.
